What were the Fund costs for last year? (based on a hypothetical $10,000 investment)

Class Name	Cost of a $10,000 investment	Costs paid as a percentage of a $10,000 investment
Investor shares	$110	1.04%

How did the Fund perform last year and what affected its performance?

The Fund's Investor Shares returned 10.88% for the trailing twelve months ended July 31, 2025, underperforming the S&P 500 Index (the "benchmark"), which returned 16.33%.

U.S. equities delivered generally solid returns over the period. Late 2024 rate cuts by the Federal Reserve, resilient economic indicators, strong corporate earnings, and continued enthusiasm around artificial intelligence (AI) all helped to bolster investor optimism, despite significant volatility and heightened uncertainty surrounding tariffs and central bank policy.

The Fund's underperformance relative to the benchmark was disproportionately driven by a few specific names, including Novo Nordisk, Meta Platforms, Broadcom, and Palantir Technologies. Of these, the largest individual detractor was an out-of-benchmark position in Novo Nordisk, a Danish pharmaceutical company that struggled amid increasing competition in the obesity drug market. The others were large benchmark holdings in the Information Technology and Communication Services sectors that were not held and which saw strong returns on the back of continued AI dominance. Meta (the parent company of Facebook) and Palantir (a data mining software company) were not held as they do not meet Domini's Impact Investment Standards, while Broadcom continued to outperform after it was sold during the period. Other notable detractors included an out-of-benchmark position in Dutch semiconductor equipment company ASML Holding, which was also sold during the period, and enterprise software company Oracle, which was not held.

Partially offsetting these negative impacts, the Fund benefitted from not holding some other large benchmark holdings which underperformed, including UnitedHealth Group and Eli Lilly, both of which do not meet our standards. Top contributors also included overweight positions in other companies benefitting from AI trends, including NVIDIA. Relative results were also helped by not having exposure to the Energy sector, which it does not invest in due to Domini's exclusionary standards on fossil fuels.
